

OFF TO GREENER PASTURES: Paige Harrison and Elizabeth Malone with the cows they just finished painting, and which will wander about town until June 5.

Have Cud, Will Travel

If Duxburyites are wondering how the peripatetic Holsteins came to be, here's the short version. Lois Wood conceived the idea, and artist Bettina Lesieur passed it along to her art students. Lesieur then created the bovine patterns, and her husband, Jeff Gray, along with Pete Krussel, cut the plywood for the 22 students to decorate. The results of their work now adorn different grassy properties around town until they will be auctioned-off at a public family event to be held at the O'Neil Farm on June 5. Look for news later about the O'Neil Farm Days to be held on June 5 and 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. both days.
